GEORGE GREY BARNARD

Writes From Paris an Interesting Story on the Penna. Capitol

BORN IN BELLEFONTE

Son of Rev. Joseph H. Barnard D D. Former Pastor of the Presbyterian Church of this Place.

LOSS WILL BE THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS

Paris, April 22.—George Grey Barnard, who was commissioned to do the sculpture work for the Pennsylvania capitol building in Harrisburg, has been reading the accounts of the scandal connected with that edifice with bitter interest.

Mr. Barnard is now living with his wife and daughter at Moret, a quiet, old-world village near Fontainebleau. Here in a huge and somewhat dilapidated grange, which Barnard has transformed into a studio, are some of the groups of statuary which the sculptor has designed for the Pennsylvania capitol, and which represented the ideal conception and the achieved consummation of his artistic existence.

There are in all 100 figures, ranging in size from small modelings to those of more than life size—casts of which, when done into marble, were to have adorned the entrance to the capitol.

"Those figures represent," said Barnard, "not only three years of the hardest work possible for a man, but a whole lifetime of artistic thought and development.

CUT PRICE $400,000

"When the capital was being planned, the state architect, Joseph M. Huston, summoned me. He asked me if I would undertake to furnish the sculptur for the building. Before him and the committee I drew up a design which, in the opinion of artiste well qualified to judge would be a fitting and adequate feature in the scheme. They offered me $700,000 for the work. Had they offered me $7,000,000,000 it would have been all the same to me. My head was in the clouds, as it was in the clouds when I was studying at the Beaux arts in Paris and walked up the streets with my trouser legs pinned up to hide the tatters.

"Then when the contract came to be drawn up the price was cut down to $300,000, for which sum it was understood I was to furnish two groups on either side of the entrance; another was a relief to crown the entrance, and various figures to decorate either end of the facade. This work was divided into three parts, which, it was thoroughly well understood were to be left in my hands. Eventually the contract was very, very different from the original proposition that was drawn up and under which I was to supply within three years three groups and bas reliefs, which were to be placed on either side of the entrance and above it.

HUSTON'S DEMANDS UNREASONABLE.

"This was the most difficult and most costly part of the work. I explained that $100,000 would not more than defray my actual expense. But Huston proposed that committees would purchase my Hewer, now on exhibition in Brooklyn, and my well-known oak clock, for $40,000, which would enable me to meet my personal expenses during the period before I could undertake the remainder of the other two parts of sculptural decorations. Then it was insisted that I should give a guarantee that the work would be finished within three years.

"That proposal, I think, was unheard of in the whole history of art. However, it was represented that no such guarantee was necessary, and I was told that we were all sons of Pennsylvania and were all imbued with the one idea to give the best that was in us to our state. Architects, contractors, furnishers, painters, everyone, I was informed, was working on the capitol building under the one self-sacrificing idea. No one was getting anything out of it. Everybody was putting all he could into it, and giving with good grace.

"I agreed to everything proposed to me. The contract was drawn up under which the Baltimore Bonding Company went my sponsor for $50,000. One hundred thousand dollars, was to be paid me in monthly installments. The first $20,000 due me I never received as it was paid over to the Baltimore Bonding Company, and, with the exception of the first month's allowance, money was never once sent to me on time and in accordance with the agreement. My representations by later cable dispatches were disregarded and taken no head of.

NO ADEQUATE RETURN FOR WORK.

"My position was a most difficult one I had engaged a number of workmen, who had come out here from Paris with their wives and families, and for whom I could not obtain any satisfaction in regard to the purchase of the Hewer and clock upon which I had counted. The necessary outlay in renting studios, the purchase of materials, and the payment of workmen took up all the money I received from the state treasury, which, by the way, did not amount to $87,000 as it is reported that the capitol investigation committee has ascertained, but at most $60,000 or $61,000.

"What was I getting personally out of this? What return for my lifetime of study and years and years of labor? From the time I came to France and began work on my groups for the capital, I slaved like a helot. I did not walk to my work, I did not run to my work, I leaped to my work like a tiger. My friends said it was impossible to accomplish in three years what I had planned to do. The artistic and sculptors who came out from Paris to look at my groups said they were grandiose and represented the labor of a lifetime. But my heart was set on doing what I had undertaken to do. My groupe represented a whole panorama of life as I saw it, the joy and tribulation of life and the crowning triumph of labor It meant to me a realization of the dreams that had been mine in my youth and had assumed definite, tangible form with maturity. I wanted to give the best that was in me, and I spared myself no effort."

THORNS BECAUSE HE WAS NO GRAFTER.

Mr. Barnard then went on to speak of the innumerable difficulties he had encountered. He suggested that if he had been willing to acquiesce in graft his way would have been strewn with flowers, instead of being, as it was, beset with thorns. He had come over to France on funds which he had obtained by mortgaging personal property. His first $20,000 had been paid over by the Baltimore Bonding Company. He was to have received $2,000 every month. He received a draft on time only once, and for two and one-half years, to use his own phrase, he 'had lived in purgatory."

Huston, he said, knew he could not give them all the work called for in the contract for the money. Two bas reliefs alone represented $25,000 apiece. The state treasury owed him between $37,000 and $38,000 of money due him under the contract, which it was thoroughly understood by the architect members of the committee and everybody concerned was only a partial contract, and called for two other cotracts under which the sculptor, would be able to reimburse himself.—Pittsburg Gazette Time.

IN THE MIDST OF LIFE.

And then in a Moments Time is in Eternity.

In the midst of life, we are in death. How truly God's word has been fullfilled in the death of George Lambert of Milesburg.

He was a hearty, robust man and the very last person you would think of passing away from this life. He has been employed by the Bellefonte Cenral Railroad Company for the past five years as a watchman at the engine house. While at his work last Thursday evening he was overcome with gas and was taken home, since then he has not been quite so well, but was able to be around the house and on the streets. On Monday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock he walked up to Mr. Miles store and made some purchases, he went back home and about fifteen minutes afterwards his good wife found him dead.

George W. Lambert was a splendid citizen, upright and honest and highly respected by all who knew him. He was a good kind husband and father and worked hard every day. He will be missed in the home and town. Mr. Lambert was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He was born in Benner township but has resided in Milesburg for the past thirty-five years. He would have been 57 years old on the 27th of May.

He leaves to mourn his death his wife Molly Gengher Lambert, and the following children, Leeds, Harry, Tracy, Clyde, and Ethel all at home. The funeral occured this morning at 10 o'clock. Services held at the home.

MOSEBARGER AND DUGAN

Proprietor of Commercial Hotel of Altoona Robbed.

$48.00, WATCH, RING

Fred Mosebarger, Formerly of Bellefonte and John Dugan Fall Into the Hands of a Sneak Thief and got Relieved.

TRIED BEFORE JOHN J. IRWIN.

Harry C. Palmer an alleged "panhandler was arrested Wednesday afternoon and was given a hearing Thursday morning before Alderman J. J. Irwin on the charge of robbing the proprietor of the Commercial hotel on Eigth avenue and Tenth street Palmer has been in the city for a week. He walked with a crutch and sold lead pencils. Last Wednesday night he was watched by Patrolman Spangler and when he saw that the man sometimes forgot to use his crutch he took him into custody and placed a charge of vagrancy against him Thursday evening when he was given a hearing before the mayor he claimed that he had a soldier's license, urging that he had secured it because he had served in the Spanish American war. His lameness he said, was caused by a steel girder falling upon his foot while he was employed as a structural iron worker Mayor Walker discharged him on condition that he would leave the city.

Instead of doing this he secured a license from License Tax Collector, T. M. Goodfellow to sell novelties on the streets. He went into business immediately and made sufficient money to live and get drunk. Early Sunday morning he was released on leaving $2.80 securiety, which he forfeited by not appearing for a hearing Sunday evening All this time he was being watched by the authorities but they had no proof that he was a "pan handler" until Wednesday morning.

Palmer secured lodging at the Commercial hotel, owned by Fred Mosebarger, on Eighth avenue near Tenth street. He paid for his lodging in advance, but early in the morning, while all the occupants of the hotel were asleep he ransacked the house and secured considerable plunder. Among the articles taken were a gold watch valued at $20, a string of gold beads costing $5, a $1 savings bank and $9 in money.

Shortly after noon a car inspector telephoned the police department that a man was trying to break open a savings bank along the railroad at Fourth street. The inspector was told to watch the man and Officers Stephens and Staines were sent to place the man under arrest. Palmer at this time did not have a cane and when taken to police station could walk as good as any person At the station house he was searched and the watch, beads and money were found in his clothes.

No complaint had been made of the robbery at the police station and when the man was arrested the number of the savings bank was secured. The Mountain City Trust company, from which institution the bank had been secured, found that the bank had been the property of Fred Mosebarger, of the Commercial hotel. Mr. Mosebarger was notified and an examination was made, with the result that the goods mentioned were found missing.

John Dugan of Bellefonte who is a guest of Mr. Mosebarger's at the Commercial was a heavy looser as the fellow got about $48.00. A gold watch gold ring, and some clothing belonging to Dugan. Johnie didn't care so much for the goods he lost only it made it mighty inconvenient for him as he was to be best man at a wedding in Bellefonte.—Altoona Gazette.

Burgess' Saleris May Be $50 a Month

The chief burgess' salary bill introduced by A. B. Garner, of Ashland, providing that burgesses of boroughs having a population of 5,000 may be paid $50 per month, has been signed by Governor Stuart and now becomes a law. This measure does not fix the salary at that amount but gives each municipality the lawful power to increase it to that amount.

BELLEFONTE BOY KILLED.

In Butler—Mother and Sisters Heart Broken Over the Sad Death

Saturday morning at 10 o'clock long distance telephone message reached Bellefonte saying that Peter Francis McGovern had been seriously hurt and died shortly afterwards in the Butler hospital.

He was on his way from work Friday evening and a train was passing into the town and in order to get to his boarding house and get supper and dressed, he tried to jump on and missed the step. He was thrown under the wheels and mortally injured. He was taken to the Butler hospital where he lingered until Saturday morning when he passed into the great beyond. He was conscious up until he died.

Pete as he was generally known among his associates, was a kind hearted lad, who had hosts of friends in the old town, He was a bright ambitious young fellow and liked to work. He learned the moulding trade and like lots of lads had sort of a desire to see some of the world, and although away from home most of the time he would write to his mother and sisters and tell them where he was and how he was getting along. Only Thursday evening he wrote a very encouraging letter to his mother telling her of the splendid position he had, and that he expected to spend Sunday with them at home, little did he know at that time that before another Sabbath day dawned he would be in eternity. He was a cheerful dispositioned boy and was esteemed by all who knew him.

He was a member of St. John's Catholic Church of Bellefonte, also a member of the Soldality of the Blessed Virgin.

Peter Francis McGovern was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John McGovern. He was born in Mt Carmel and would have been 18 years of age on the 7th of May. Left to mourn his death are his father mother, and the following brothers and sisters Bernard, John, William, Gertrude, Margaret and Mame.

Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock sad and impressive services were held in the S. John's Catholic church [illegible] the remains of the late Pe[illegible]. The pall bearers were the following young men: Messrs Danie Kelley, John Kane, John Saylor, Wilfred Miller, John Conly, and Joseph McGowan. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

Miss Cole and Mr. Love Married on Thursday Evening.

The pretty little home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Cole situated at the base of the Muncy mountains near Coleville was the scene of a beautiful wedding on Thursday evening. It was the giving in marriage of their daughter Miss Vada L. to Mr. George Love formerly of Bellefonte but now of Altoona. It was a quiet affair only the immediate friends of the two families being present.

The bride looked charming in a gown of Alice blue broadcloth. She was attended as bridesmaid by her sister Miss Caroline who looked very pretty in a blue taffata silk trimmed in white silk lace. Mr. John Dugan of Altoona acted as best man. The cermony was performed at 8 o,clock by Rev. W. H. Spangler of the Unted Brethren Church after which an excellent wedding dinner was served to the bridal party and the guests. The bride received many beautiful and useful presents in the way of table linen, cut glass, china and silverware.

They will not take the usual bridal tour until later in the summer as Mr. Love's leave of absence is limited to only a couple of days. They left on the 4.44 train Sunday afternoon for Altoona where the groom holds a splendid position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

We extend to them our best wishes and hope that joy and happiness will be with them through life.

"Panhandler" Sent to Jail.

Harry C. Palmer, the "panhandler" was arrested Tuesday afternoon at Ninth avenue and Fourth street, Altoona, and who is cerged with robbing the Commercial Hotel, was given a hearing Thursday before Alderman John J. Irwin on the charge of larceny. In default of $500 bail he was committed to jail to await a trial at court.

This is the fellow that relieved Dugan and Moehbarger of their money. This same individual was in Bellefonte during the week, and no doubt a great many of the citizens saw him.

A MYSTERY AT BELLWOOD

Mrs. Mary Viske was Found Dead at her Home.

AN INQUEST WAS HELD.

Jury Decides she came to her death by Hands of Person or Persons other than Herself.

WAS PREPARING TO DO A WASHING.

Bellwood was the scene of a mysterious murder Monday morning and the victim was Mrs. Mary Viske, the wife of John Viske, a well to do Italian resident of the town. She was shot down in cold blood at her home on North Seventh street by an assassin who has thus far been successful in biding from his awful crime. Murder it is said, will out and when the truth becomes public it is expected that it will show that the work was done by a fellow countryman of the woman.

The Viske family has been in this country for the past eighteen years, eleven of which were passed at Punxsutawney and the remaining seven at Bellwood. Viske only last summer built a cozy little home on North Seventh street and the family was held in esteem in the neighborhood and the relations of the household seemed happy. The murder occurred about 8 o'clock when only Mrs Viske and her three children were in the household. Her husband, John Viske, works at night, but having worked Sunday night got up early Monday morning and had breakfast with his wife and four boarders. The boarders, all fellow countrymen of the Viskes work in daylight. Viske went to the postoffice while the woman made preparations to do the family washing. Shortly before 8 o'clock her little son Joseph aged 8 years came down stairs and was greeted by his mother with several kisses He walked into the yard and when he came back discovered the door closed Pushing it open he found his mother lying, bleeding about the body. He notified Mrs. Wm. Haines and Mrs. Etta Smith, neighbors, and they went to the house, and seeing the woman was dead, called in others. Dr. Wilson was summoned and found life extinct and an examination showed that she had been shot four times in the left breast. The revolver was lying at her side. It was a 38-calibre with four chambers empty and had the appearance of having been out of service for some time. The husband of the woman was notified of his wife's death on his way home from the post office and was horrified when he discovered that she had been shot. The remains were removed to the rooms of Undertaker McFarland and Coroner W. T. Blackburn notified.

Conorner Blackburn went to Bellwood at once and started and investigation.

Morton Smith has Diphtheria.

Morton Smith one of the clerks in the Bellefonte Post Office has diphtheria. Complaining of being ill, he went home and a physician summoned who pronounced his sickness diptheritic symptoms. As soon as ever Post Master Harter heard that it was this contagious disease he wired to the Department at Washington for permission to close the office and have it thoroughly fumigated, and his request was granted. Hard P. Harris disinfected everyone and everything connected with the office, the employees of the office changed their clothes before leaving the building and every precaution has been taken to keep the disease from spreading.

The office was opened again at 3 o'clock William H. Garman will do Mr. Smith's work while he is confined to his home. Mr. Garman is thoroughly conversant with the duties in the office and will fill the position in an acceptable manner. It is sincerely hoped that Mr. Smith may speedily recover.

Curfew will Blow Monday.

On Monday evening April 29th the first curfew will sound in Bellefonte. The official ordinance has appeared in the papers and has been posted throughout the town, and every one should thoroughly understand this law by this time. This will be your last week boys, to be on the streets after nine o'clock. Have a good time while it lasts.

DEMAND MORE WAGES.

And if the Request is not Granted the Carpenters Union Will go out on a Strike.

We hear that unless the contractors and the two planing mills in Bellefonte sign a scale to raise all Union Carpenters 2 cents an hour over the present rate of wages, all men belonging to this Union will cease work on May 1st, 1907.

We hear today that the Watsontown Sash and Door Company who employ a large number of Union Carpenters have shut down their plant for the first time in twenty years, saying that they cannot afford to pay the raise demanded by the Union at that place.

At the present time there are 30,000 Union Carpenters out of work at Minneapolis, this being caused by a demand for more wages which the Mills and Contractors would not grant, thus tying up a $1,000,000 worth of buildings in that city. the contractors say they will cease all work until the Union agrees to go back at the old scale of wages.

Their are 50,000 men going on a strike in Philadelphia this week demanding more wages and this step by the Unions is tying up work all over the country.

We certainly hope that this matter will be compromised so that the Union will not be caused to strike in Bellefonte, as this would take quite a few of our best carpenters from our town, as they would seek work elsewhere, and we are anxious to hold on to our mechanics.

Mr. F. W. Crider was interviewed by a reporter of this paper Monday morning in regards to the pending strike and he said he did not wish to make a statement at this time. The Ardell Lumber Company had nothing to say on the subject.

He was a Kicker.

On Monday afternoon a fellow who gave his name as James Torrell from Scranton, got so excited that he walked or kicked through Billy Doll's bakery wind w. The Scrantonian reached Bellefonte sometime on Monday and from the looks of his face he had come in contact with the pavement several times or some one hit him with a lemon. Anyhow he was slightly disfigured around his peepers and nose. He was pretty well filled up with Bellefonte's spring water and got a pretty good start coming down High street and no doubt was making for the spring again when he made the turn to short and run into the bakery window, at any rate he gave it three good kicks, (perhaps he thought he was telling some one the story about the little white dog) the heavy plate glass was broken all to pieces. He went inside and tried to explain how he did it, but the Doll brothers being afraid he might try the same on the show cases, told him to go out side and tell the birds how it happened. But he grabbed a broom and started to finish the job he had so nicely begun.

He went over to the Bush House and rested while Mr. Ray and General Curtin started over the town to find a police to arrest him, in about an hours time one was located and then Mr. Scrantonian visited the spring, got another drink and then was put in the spring house over night. Mr. Bush says he will pay for the window or go to jail.

LATER—We understand Torrell is from Lewistown,

Married by Rev. McArdle.

Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock Miss Ida Moorehead of Homer City, Indiana Co. Pa., and Mr. Harry P. Saylor, of Altoona, Pa., were married by Rev. Patrick McArdle at the Catholic Manse on Bishop street.

The wedding was quite a surprise as no one knew anything at all about it, except the immediate families. After the ceremony and excellent wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. Saylor's parents on Valentine street, at which quite a number of guests were present.

Mr. Saylor is an old Bellefonte boy who has hosts of friends here, at one time he was a clerk in Joseph Brothers & Co. store. After he left Bellefonte he located in Altoona where he is now employed by the P. R. R. Co.

The bride and groom left on the 9:05 train Tuesday morning for a wedding tour to St. Louis, after which they will locate in Altoona where they will make their future home. We wish them both happiness through life.

Leitzel—Thomas.

Mr. Samuel B. Leitzell and Miss Edna Thomas were united in marriage at the United Brethren Parsonge, Wednesday evening April 17th 1907. Rev. W. H. Spangler performed the ceremony. They will make their home in Punxsutawney, Pa.

ALLEGED PLOT AGAINST LIFE

Of President=Now Being Investigated by Secret Service,

ANARCHISTS IN SCHEME

Story Told by the Chief of Police of Newark Before Committing Suicide

CONFIRMED BY DESERTED MEMBER

Newark, N. J., April 19. An alleged plot on the part of Pennsylvania anarchists, who are said to have headquarters at Hazelton, to assassinate President Roosevelt is being investigated by the United States secret service. Information which led to the investigation was given to the secret service officials by Chief of Police Adams a few days ago, just before he shot and killed himself.

The chief told the secret service officials that he obtained his information from Jan Bartula, who recently came here from Audenreid, Pa., and who claims to be a member of the band of conspirators. He said they had gone back on him, and it was with a desire to be revenged upon them that he exposed the plot.

He gave Chief Adams the names of several persons who he said were implicated in the plot and further said that Czolgosz, who assassinated President McKinley, had been a member of the band. Chief Flynn of the New York district of the United States secret service, has had several men at work on the case ever since the information was given him by Chief Adams. They have interviewed Bartula and he told them practically the same story.

"The Original Bellefonters."

The "boozers" have reorganized their base ball team as they have received two new players which strengthens the aggregation very materially. John Mills had signed with the Altoona Giants [illegible] account of business affairs he has decided to remain in Bellefonte. The other one is Charley Scott who had intended signing with the crack team at Mansfield, Pa. and as they could not come together on the financial question, "Scottie" decided he would rather cast his lot with the Bellefonte people and stay in the old town this summer, so this addition means that we are to have an old time base ball team which will be a credit to the old town of Governors. They have gotten down to practice and mean to do all in their power to have a first class team. Charley Scott has been elected Captain and Manager and all challenges for games should be addressed to him. They desire to play an early game with the Bellefonte Academy and assure everyone that the best of feeling will reign between the two teams. The line-up is as follows:

H. Kirk—1st b
B. Nolan—R. F.
J. Kane—C. F.
R. Moerschbacher—L. F.
J. Mills—3rd b.
C. Scott—S. S.
E. Gingher—2nd b.

LONGEVITY.

Its Deadliest Foes Are Excitement, Hurry and Worry.

What is the secret of longevity? We answer: The surest guarantee is a genius for it, a bodily and mental predisposition to a long life. There are persons who are "prefigured unto a long duration." Those who have this gift, which is inherited from long lived ancestors, will generally reach old age, even though they trample on the laws of health, because, although they draw more largely on their vitality than careful livers, they begin life with a vast capital.

For the man of ordinary stamina the chief conditions of long life that are not involuntary are constant occupation in an honorable calling, regular hours, bodily exercise, plenty of sleep, a temperate gratification of all the natural appetites, a sunny disposition and a clear conscience. The deadliest foes to longevity are excitement, hurry and worry.

Strictly speaking, it is not overwork—that is, in the aggregate—that kills. It is too much work done in too little time that causes so many breakdowns today. Work pure and simple, however hard or constant, seldom impairs the health, if only ordinary hygienic precautions are observed. Mental and bodily labor within reasonable limits tend rather to prolong life than to fray its thread. Even overwork may do less injury than underwork—"that rare and obscure calamity from which nobody is supposed to suffer."—Success.

HOME FINANCING.

The Ever Present Problem of Providing For the Future.

There is one problem that dominates the home—an obtrusive, pervasive problem that ofttimes fills the whole horizon of life—one that, like Banquo's ghost, "will not down." It is the ever present question of home financing. When we have mastered the "to have," the problem of the "to hold" confronts us. It is the question of providing for the home which can never be properly answered until we realize that "provide" is a verb that should ever be conjugated in two tenses, present and future.

There is in our American life too often a blind optimism in living up to an income, in assuming that because the sun of prosperity shines warmly today there is no need of providing umbrellas for a possible rainy tomorrow. Those who wisely live within an income rarely have to face the problem of trying to live without one. There are two simple guarantees against future poverty and dependence on others, two great safeguards for home and family—a bank book and an insurance policy. They represent the material defense of the home, a bulwark of love's forethought standing strong and firm in the hour of need.—Delineator.

An Actinic Voice.

Mr. Martin was of those who say of music, "I don't know anything about it, really, but I know what I like." Unfortunately his lack of knowledge never led him to silence.

"I heard a wonderful tenor voice while I was in Paris one summer," he said, with enthusiasm, to a patient friend. "Wonderful! The highest tenor I ever heard."

"Indeed!" said the friend. "What is his name?"

"Why, I can't recall his name," admitted Mr. Martin, "but the voice stays in my mind. Why, man, he sang way up above the scales with perfect ease!"—Youth's Companion.

Italian View of English Police.

The English police force does not shine for its ability in unraveling mysteries or in arresting daring criminals. Statistics show that not less than 30,000 persons disappear unaccountably from London every year. In many other cases these strange vanishings are a direct consequence of crimes that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred go unknown or unpunished. When arrests do follow, especially in thefts and burglaries of importance, they are invariably due to interested betrayal, which puts the detective on the direct scent. If there is no informant, the police do nothing.—Rome Mesaggero.

Wronged.

"But her father objected. "He's a spendthrift. He has no sense of the value of money."

"Oh, you're mistaken, papa!" she answered him. "He can make a dollar go as far as any one. Last night he showed me one that he had carried around the world as a pocket piece."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Why a Swelling Follows a Blow.

The swelling which follows from a blow is nature's effort to protect the part from further injury and to keep it at rest while repair is going on. What actually takes place at the seat of injury is not even now quite understood. The injury to the smaller blood vessels interferes with the flow of blood through them, and the white corpuscles, with part of the serum, the watering part of the blood, escape into the surrounding tissues. At the same time the blood vessels in the neighborhood dilate, and the increased flow of blood with the thoroughfare obstructed increases the swelling. It is probable that the white corpuscles of the blood pass into the tissues to assist in the repair, as bees or ants assemble at an injury to their storehouse, but with this difference—that the substance of the corpuscles is probably converted into the tissues of repair. From one point of view the swelling that follows an injury is but the rush of these to repair the breach.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A reasonable probability is the only certainty.

Nervous New Yorkers.

"If anybody needs to be convinced that New Yorkers are a nervous lot, just let him peep under dining room tables at mealtime and see the position of the feet and he will have all the proof he wants," remarked the proprietor of a popular restaurant. "Not one person in a hundred sits with his feet planted squarely on the floor while eating. Some twist their feet around the legs of tables and chairs, some sit with them crossed, others rest the feet on the tips of the toes, while still others bear their whole weight down on the heel. Since it is only the flatly planted foot that indicates an equable temperament, it is easy to see what a nervous, irresponsible crowd the army of diners out really is."—New York Post.

Walrus and Bullets.

The most vulnerable spot in which to hit a walrus is the back part of the skull. The forehead, being several inches thick in bone, almost invariably turns bullets even if solid ones are used in a big rifle, as should always be done. Besides the head, with the exception of the heart, there is hardly a vital spot in these huge brutes' bodies, and bullets may be fired ad libitum into these masses of flesh and blubber without seeming to have much effect.

A Crimean Incident.

Many are the deeds of heroism recorded in Sir Evelyn Wood's story of his rise "From Midshipman to Field Marshal," but none more thrilling than an incident of the fighting in the Crimea.

"Look out! 'Whistling Dick!'" was the warning that was shouted one day, and at the call, which referred to a certain huge mortar which had been shelling them, every one in hearing rushed for shelter. All succeeded in gaining the trenches except young Blewitt of H. M. S. Queen. Him the spent shell caught under the knees and pinned to the ground.

"Stephen, Stephen," he called to Stephen Welch, "do not leave me to die!"

The fuse of the thirteen inch shell was hissing, but Welch did not hesitate a second.

"Come on, lads! Let's try!" he shouted and, leaping from the trench, began tugging with all his strength at the big mass of iron. At that instant it burst, and of neither man was a fragment seen again.

Street Cars In Brazil.

"There are first and second class street cars," writes a tourist, describing his South American travels, "and I, with a package in my arms, had taken a first class bond, as a street car is called in Rio de Janeiro. Scarcely had I done so when the conductor requested me to transfer to a second class car whenever it might come along, because no one is allowed to carry anything greater than a lap satchel first class. So I humbly descended and had either to mix with market women and sweaty laborers or to take a tilbury. A person without a necktie is no more allowed first class on the street cars than was I with my parcel. They are decidedly particular in Brazil and inherit many fastidious ways from the time of the empire, when dress and manners were the mark separating the aristocracy from the working classes."

HAMPTON COURT.

Stories of the Haunted English Royal Palace.

Tales of uncanny happenings cling to old Hampton court, the English royal palace on the Thames built by Cardinal Wolsey. Not long ago a policeman asserted that he saw a ghostly funeral procession there. The London Chronicle remarks: "The most definite of these old stories concerns Mistress Sibell Penn, who was Edward VI.'s nurse and died at the palace in 1562. She was buried in Hampton church, and a monument was erected which was irreverently destroyed when the old church was pulled down in 1829. Soon after this strange noises as of a woman working a spinning wheel were heard through the wall of one of the rooms in the southwest wing of the palace. When search was made by the office of works an ancient chamber was discovered in which an antique spinning wheel was found, the old oak planks being worn away where the treadle struck the floor. After this Mrs. Penn's ghost is said to have appeared to many occupants of the palace; but, according to Law, the historian of Hampton court, she has not been seen since 1886, when her tall, gaunt form, dressed in a long gray robe, nearly frightened a young soldier to death.

"Another well accredited story relates how a certain lady of title who lived on the west side of the Fountain court in 1870 was frequently conscious of the presence in her room of two invisible beings, and she was greatly disturbed by the mysterious sounds that emanated from various quarters of her apartments. She addressed a formal complaint to the lord chamberlain. This gentleman referred her to the office of works, which, however, declined to interfere on the ground that there were no funds at their disposal for any such purpose and that the jurisdiction of the first commissioner did not extend to the spirit world.

"At last, however, on Nov. 2, 1871, some workmen, while excavating in the cloister of the Fountain court, came upon two perfect skeletons of full grown men opposite to Lady ——'s door. They were given Christian burial in Hampton church, and the mysterious noises immediately ceased. Now the only ghost that is seen in the palace is that of Jane Seymour, queen of Henry VIII., which, some residents say, still occasionally wanders, with a lighted taper in her hand, in the neighborhood of Silver Stick gallery."

A Literary Curiosity.

Some years ago a Paris newspaper ordered a story of adventure from a well known novelist. The price agreed upon was 1 franc a line. The novelist straightway hunted up an old man of letters—the unknown collaborator of many more famous authors—who agreed to write the story for 25 centimes a line. When the work had reached its second part in the course of publication the novelist learned that his old client was seriously ill. Hastening to his [illegible], he found him dying. In agony for the fate of his story, the novelist rushed to the office of the newspaper, got hold of some back numbers in order to pick up the threads of the romance and brought it to a speedy end in a few brief chapters. Then he went to the office with the manuscript.

"What's that?" asked the editor.

"Why, the continuation and end of my story."

"Oh, then, you want to change it, I suppose, because, you know, you sent in the last chapters three days ago."

Admirable self possession on the part of the novelist prevented disaster, and he finally found this explanation: The old man, whose price was 25 centimes a line, had himself sublet his task to a third writer at 10 centimes, and thus the work had been finished in safety.

The Limerick Variety.

Some years ago M. Paul Villars, London correspondent of the Journal des Debats, went to Limerick on the occasion of a great Nationalist meeting. On arriving at the hotel he asked for a room in the front of the house. A servant took him to a small dark room looking on to an inner courtyard. M. Villars went to the window and satisfied himself that there was a mistake.

"This is not the front of the house," said he.

"Oh, yes, sir," the servant said; "it's the back of the front."

He Probably Spoke.

"I say, Mr. Johnston," said little Tommy, "are you fond of speaking?"

"Not very, Tommy," replied Mr. Johnston, with a smile.

"You don't speak much?"

"Well, not a great deal."

"I thought so," said little Tommy, "because I heard Sister Agnes say to mamma today that she had been waiting six months for you to speak."

High Pressure Days.

Men and women alike have to work incessantly with brain and hand to hold their own nowadays. Never were the demands of business, the wants of the family, the requirements of society, more numerous. The first effect of the praise worthy effort to keep up with all these things is commonly seen in a weakened or debilitated condition of the nervous system, which results in dyspepsia, defective nutrition of both body and brain, and in extreme cases in complete nervous prostration. It is clearly seen that what is needed is what will sustain the system, give vigor and tone to the nerves, and keep the digestive and assimilative functions healthy and active. From personal knowledge, we can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for this purpose. It acts on all the vital organs, builds up the whole system, and fits men and women for these high pressure days.

STAKED HIS VIOLIN.

The Incident That Cured the Great Paganini of Gambling.

When Nicolo Paganini was only fifteen years of age, it is said, he left his father's house and plunged into a reckless life of dissipation and gambling. At times his losses at the gaming table even compelled him to part with his violin. This occurred at Leghorn, where he was billed for a concert. A resident French merchant and amateur M. Livron, hearing of his dilemma, loaned him a Joseph Guarnerius. When Paganini went to return it after the concert the enthusiastic Frenchman exclaimed, "Never shall my hands profane the instrument which yours have touched!" and presented the violin to the virtuoso. This became Paganini's favorite violin and is the one he left to the city of Genoa, where it is exhibited in the municipal palace. The threatened loss of this instrument cured him of gambling. According to Paganini himself, his means had been reduced at the gaming table to a few francs, and he felt that he would be obliged to accept a standing offer for his much prized Guarnerius, made to him by a prince who greatly coveted it. As a last desperate chance of saving his precious violin he staked what little money he had left on one play and won. But the risk he had run gave him such a fright that he quit the gaming table for good and all.

THE GAELIC TONGUE.

Peculiarities of the Language of the Highland Scotch.

There are in Gaelic no neuter nouns. They are all either masculine or feminine. Sun, moon, star, tree, rock, stone, etc., are feminine nouns; sky, air, bird, fish, house, barn, etc., are masculine. A hill is masculine; a mountain, feminine. The ocean is masculine; the sea is feminine. Strange to say, the word for "a female" is a masculine noun and the word for "a manservant" a feminine. But these two curious exceptions stand practically alone.

In the construction of sentences Gaelic is very different from English. People who know enough about the language to make dangerous use of it will tell you, for instance, that in Gaelic you have to talk backward. By this is meant that you do not begin by using the same word that you would begin with in English. In Gaelic the verb comes before the noun and the noun before the adjective. Thus, if you were going to say "A wise man shuns evil companions" you would arrange your words in this order: "Shuns a man wise companions evil." This way of putting the verb at the very beginning of a sentence is really better than having it follow the noun. Being the word of the sentence, it stands in its proper place. To the highlander English is the language that is spoken backward.

Banana Leaves.

Banana leaves serve many useful purposes, for of them are made tough paper from the thinnest tissue to thickest cardboard, clothing, hats and brushes, mats and hammocks. Millions of pounds of banana fiber, misnamed manila "hemp," are each year brought to the United States or taken to Europe and spun into cordage from the fineness of silk up through the size of twine to the bigness of mammoth cables, and many dainty handkerchiefs and bits of fine lace have been woven from the fibers of banana leaves by the deft fingers of the women of South America and of the far east.

Sunflower Most Deceitful of Plants.

"The sunflower," said a naturalist, "is the most deceitful of all plants, for it has fooled six nations. Six nations believe that the sunflower turns toward the sun, and so thoroughly are they deluded that they call it by a name which bears witness to their error. Thus, the French call the sunflower tournesol; the Spanish call it girasol; the Italians call it girasole; the Hungarians call it naptaforgo. Each of these words means 'turn to the sun.' The English and Americans don't go quite that far in admitting themselves to be the plant's dupes. They only call it sunflower. They mean by that name, though, quite as much as the other names imply. The belief is general among six nations that the sunflower turns with the sun and always faces the luminary. As a matter of fact, there is only one flower that turns or keeps with the sun—namely, the sun spurge."

Holes In the Legs.

A scientist says that hogs' legs perform a function not known to any other animal, and that is an escape pipe or pipes for the discharge of waste water or sweat not used in the economy of the body. These escape pipes are situated upon the inside of the legs, above and below the knee in the fore legs and above the gambrel joints in the hind legs, but in the latter they are very small and functions light. Upon the inside of the fore leg they are in the healthy hog always active, so that moisture is always there from about or below these orifices or ducts in the healthy hog. The holes in the leg and breathing in the hog are his principal and only means of ejecting an excess of heat above the normal, and when very warm the hog will open the mouth and breathe through that channel as well as the nostrils.

HIS TWO BOYS.

One the Hero, the Other the Black Sheep of the Family.

"Let's see," said the man who had been away a long time, "you had two boys, didn't you?"

"Yes," replied Pat. "They would av been three av thim, but one was born a girl."

"I remember now. Tom and Andy you named them, after Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"As I remember Tom he was a very bright little fellow. I never knew so much about Andy?"

"Ah, but that Andy! He's the boy! He led the big lague twict in battin', and now he's managin' a club in Missouri and has a contract fer five years at a terrible big salary. Me and his ma can't get over bein' glad we never made Andy go to school, but let him play ball in all the corner lots of the neighborhood. And all the neighbors have his pitcher in their parlors. They are proud of him."

"That's fine. I am glad to hear that Andy is doing so well. But what about Tom? I always had an idea that he was going to turn out well."

"No; Tom ain't amountin' to much. He was more for wastin' his time goin' to college and that. He's only the chief lit'ry adviser or something like that for one of these concerns that prints books. But thin, you know, they say there's a black sheep in nearly every family."—Kansas City Independent.

A FISH'S TAIL.

The Wonderful Power It Develops In Its Strokes.

A fish's tail is its wings. Thanks to the machinery of muscle set along its spine and to its cleaving form, a trout or salmon can dart through the water at a tremendous pace, though its rapid flights, unlike the bird's, are not long ones. It is soon dead beat. The water is not so friendly to flight as the air. The stroke of the fish's tail is one of great power, and by means of it and the writhing, snakelike flexion of the body, high speed is reached. The strength behind this speed is shown in the way a fish or sea mammal out of the water will raise its tail and strike the ground or boat. A fisherman told the writer he once had a rude proof of this power. He caught and, with aid, got into his boat a whale thresher. After lying still awhile as if spent or dying, the creature, on its captor approaching, suddenly lashed furiously up and down. The startled men and their captive between them nearly upset the boat. It was an experience they wish never to repeat. The slapping stroke of a helpless and landed fish may be often a spasm and no more, but when a large and naturally aggressive fish—or mammal like this thresher—lashes on the enemy approaching, it does look like conscious fight.—George R. Dewar.

A Bonanza.

A certain western congressman has had disastrous experience in gold mine speculations. One day a number of colleagues were discussing the subject of speculation when one of them said to the western member:

"Tom, as an expert, give us a definition of the term 'bonanza.'"

"A 'bonanza,'" replied the western man, with emphasis, "is a hole in the ground owned by a champion liar."—Success.

Alexander the Great.

Alexander succeeded to the throne of Macedonia in his twenty-first year. He died at the age of thirty-two. Thus in the space of about twelve years the young soldier had brought the Greek states into submission, crushed Darius and his million of Persians and crossed the Indus and defeated the Indian king Porus. Alexander was not merely a brutal conqueror, but tried to weld the various countries into a solid empire.

"Come, Willie; get up!" said an indulgent father to his son the other morning. "Remember, the early bird catches the worm."

"What do I care for worms?" replied Willie. "Mother won't let me go fishing."

Suspiciously Bad Cold.

"Why do you ask me where I was last night?" he queried. "Didn't I phone you specially that I was nearly dead with a cold and was going straight home and go to bed?"

"Yes," she assented, "and I would have believed you, too, if you hadn't coughed so terribly over the phone."—New York Press.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

CATS' WHISKERS.

These Sensitive Organs Are a Relic of Jungle Days.

It is perhaps not generally known that a cat's power of discernment, especially at night, is due almost as much to his whiskers as to his eyes. To any one who goes to a menagerie and looks at the giant cats of the forest—the lion and his like—the purpose of these vibrissae, as science names the hairs that project from the muzzle and from above the eyes, is evident enough.

They are delicate organs of touch, wonderful mechanisms of warning. Each one grows from a follicle, or gland, nerved to exquisite sensibility. Its slightest contact with any obstacle is distinctly felt by the animal, though the hair itself is tough and insensible. Those exaggerated whiskers on the muzzle often project to each side of the animal so far that from point to point they stretch to just the width of his body.

Imagine, now, a lion stealing through a jungle at night, tracking his prey, where the stir of a twig gives alarm. His long hairs indicate through the nicest nerves any object that may be in his velvet path. A touch stops him short before pushing through some close thicket where the rustling leaves and boughs would tell aloud his presence. Wherever his head may be thrust without a warning from the vibrissae there his body may pass noiselessly, and it is their aid, in conjunction with the soft cushions of his feet, that enables him to travel as silently as the snake.—Scrap Book.

The Eagle.

According to Washington Irving the Delaware Indians had a superstitious reverence for the eagle, believing that a guardian spirit in the form of this bird watched over them, hovering in the sky far out of sight. When pleased with their actions, he sent abundant crops and made them have great success in hunting, but when displeased he would vent his rage in the thunder, which was his voice, and the lightning, which was the flashing of his eye, and strike dead the object of his displeasure. They also believed that the feathers of this bird would render the wearer invisible and invulnerable.

Some Big Numbers.

If you fill a tiny vessel one centimeter cube with hydrogen corpuscles, you can place therein, in round numbers, five hundred and twenty-five octillions (525,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000) of them. At least so Professor Brashear said in an address delivered at Lehigh university. If these corpuscles are allowed to run out of the vessel at the rate of 1,000 per second, it will require seventeen quintillions (17,000,000,000,000,000,000) of years to empty it.

Napoleon and the Letter M.

Marboeuf was the first to recognize the genius of Napoleon at the Ecole Militaire. Marengo was the greatest battle gained by Bonaparte, and Melas opened to him the way to Italy. Mortier was one of his first generals, Moreau betrayed him, and Murat was the first martyr to his cause. Maria Louise partook of his highest destinies, Moscow was the abyss in which he was engulfed, Metternich conquered him on the field of diplomacy. Six marshals—Massena, Mortier, Marmount, MacDonald, Murat and Moncey—and twenty-six of his generals of divisions had names beginning with the letter M. M. Murat, duke of Bassino, was the counselor in whom he placed the greatest confidence. His first great battle was that of Montenotte; his last was that of Mount St. Jean. He gained the battles of Moscow, Montmirail and Montereau. Then came the assault of Montmartre. Milan was the first enemies' capital and Moscow the last in which he entered. He lost Egypt through the blunders of Menoa and employed Miollis to make Pius VIII. prisoner. Malet conspired against him; afterward Marmont. His ministers were Maret, Montalivet and Mollien. His first chamberlain was Montesquieu, his last sojourn Malmaison. He gave himself up to Captain Maitland. He had for his companion at St. Helena Montholon and for valet Marchand.

Ever Ready.

The young man spoke bitterly, "Do you take me for a fool?"

"Oh, George," she said, "this is so sudden!"—Memphis Journal.

Every man is occasionally what he ought to be perpetually.—Dr. Johnson.

He did his Duty.

A passenger coach is supposed to carry from fifty to sixty people. Often times when you get in one of the cars you find at out thirty people occupying the whole thing. Here will be one man curled up like a snake on two seats, his baggage and bundles on another, next you see a fellow sleeping with his head against the window and his feet hanging out in the isle, may be his shoes off. Another individual sits on one seat his feet on another with his suit case beside him and then you see a woman with a half dozen of squaking children each one in charge of a window. We don't say this is always the case but you often run against propositions of this kind, and for all they care you could stand, til dooms day before they would move.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is doing away with this kind of a nuisance and the employee's have instructions to see that the order will be carried out. On Wednesday one of these individuals was on the Valley train and A. G. Davis was on duty. He went to the man and in a gentlemanly manner asked him to take his feet down, also put his suitcase on the floor, the fellow flew up and got angry and told the brakie that he was some kind of an official and that he couldn't be made to take his traveling bag down. It didn't take Davis long to show him how quickly he could follow out the companies orders. For down went the satchel with a bang to the floor, and no doubt if the fellow had of said very much to him he would have gone down also. You did right old man and we praise you for it.

Dr. Krumrine Burns his Ashes.

On Thursday evening Dr. Krumrine the Allegheny street druggist experimented on the cobbler's form of burning coal ashes, at least he followed out the formula given in Thursday edition of the North American.

He used very fine coal ashes, ashes that looked more like ordinary road dust, and the salt and acid.

Three fourths coal ashes, one fourth coal and a gallon of this liquid thoroughly mixed, and it made one of the hottest fires ever in his furnace. It first sends forth a white flame and then gradually deepens into a light blue, making a fierce heat as it burns. He is greatly pleased with the experiment and expects to burn all of his ashes in this manner.

The question now is, will the price of oxalic acid raise in price? If so can it be manufactured by a home industry and put on the market?

Dr. Krumrine usually carries from fifteen to twenty pounds of this acid in stock and that amount will last over a year. Inside of an hour after the morning papers reached Bellefonte on Thursday he had sold his entire stock of acid.

George Miller the hardware dealer also tried the experiment in a large stove in the rear of his store and the result was the same as Dr. Krumrine's.

Col. Taylor tried the liquid at the steam heat works and seems pleased with the outcome. The only trouble he had was that the cinders would gather in the grates. If in some way that could be remedied it would mean thousands of dollars to the Steam Heat Works.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy, The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

HIDDEN DANGER.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Bellefonte Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of ediment and irregular of passage.

Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cures sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Bellefonte proof.

Mrs. Nancy Davis, of 246 East Logan Street, says: "I suffered a bad fall some years ago when living in Rochester. I thought at first that I had broken my back. I was unable to get up without assistance and from that time I suffered for years with a weak back and excruciating pains through the loins and through the small of my back. Sometimes I was completely prostrated and helpless. Doctors and medicines failed to help me and the pain continued until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. I took only a few doses before I began to feel better and when I had continued using them for a while I was thoroughly cured. My back regained its strength and the pain left me. I have had no return of the trouble since."

How To Avoid Appendicitis

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels and restores the natural action of the bowels. Rest is the great restorer. We tire our muscles by exercise and then rest to restore them; yet a great many of us do not stop to think how little rest we give to our stomachs. As a usual thing no part of our bodies is so generally overworked as our digestive organs. A tired and overworked stomach will give signs of distress to which we pay no need until at last Dyspepsia takes hold. Indigestion is just a warning and if we heed the warning we can easily avoid further consequences. KODOL is a most thorough stomach relief. It digests what you eat and gives the stomach the needed rest and greatly assists in restoring it to its normal activity and usefulness. KODOL is sold on a guarantee relief plan. It is sold here by Green's Phamacy.

MRS. M. M. MARSHALL

MISS ANNA CARSTEN

MISS EVA SCHELLE

MRS. CHRISTINA CLOW

Miss Anna Carsten, Clayton, Ill., writes:

"Your medicine, Peruna, did me so much good. I believe I should have been dead by this time if I had not used it.

"I am feeling so well now and have no trouble with my stomach. I have not taken any medicine for four or five months.

"If I am ever troubled with anything of the kind again, I shall take nothing but Peruna. I can cheerfully recommend it to my friends."

Miss Eva Schelle, 127 N. Quincy St., Topeka, Kas., writes:

"I unhesitatingly recommend Peruna as a splendid specific for catarrhal affections. I was a sufferer with this trouble off and on for a number of years and each fresh cold added to the difficulty.

"Finally I began taking Peruna for a cold and was glad to note that it was ridding me of the catarrh also.

"I continued to use it faithfully and the result was a complete cure in a very few months."

Mrs. Christina Clow, 411 E. Platte Ave., Colorado Springs, Col., writes:

"I have taken Peruna off and on for six years and have found it very beneficial in a great many ways.

"I took it for a cough and a cold, also for catarrh of the head, and it cured me. I took it for a tonic and it gave me strength. I have every reason to speak well of your medicine."

Catarrh of Digestive Organs and Bowels.

MRS. MARY M. MARSHALL, Tipton, Mo., writes:

"I suffered three years with catarrh of the digestive organs and bowels. I was unable to find relief, until as a last resort I was induced to try Peruna.

"I began the use of Peruna when I was confined to the bed and can say that I experienced benefit from the first dose.

"I have taken five bottles in all and believe that I am cured of my trouble.

"I am enjoying as good health as an old lady of my age could expect. My age is 77.

"I recommend your medicines to sufferers whenever I meet them, and some of my friends are using them with great success.

"I will always feel grateful to you for your grand medicine and kind advice and trust that many others may be as greatly benefited as I have been."

Pe-ru-na For Bowel Trouble.

Mrs. L. S, Tinker, 852 Second street, Macon, Ga., writes:

"Two years ago my grandson suffered with hemorrhages of the bowels and he was treated by different doctors, but without cure.

"We quit all other treatment, and began the use of Peruna, and after the use of three bottles he seemed to be quite well. He is able now to walk six miles to school every day.

"Peruna has certainly worked wonders for him, and I shall not hesitate to recommend it."

A Severe Cough.

Mrs. Emma Martin, Odessa, Mo., writes:

"I cannot thank you enough for curing me. For two years I doctored my cough which cost me many dollars, but still I seemed to get worse. My cough was so bad I could not sleep.

"Finally I purchased a bottle of Peruna. I took it according to directions, and in a short while I felt better, and after I had taken a second bottle I felt entirely well.

"After the use of six bottles I feel that I am cured, and therefore recommend this grand medicine to all who suffer with a cough as I did."

A Household Remedy.

Mrs. Celia Eibling, R. R. No. 3, Payne, Ohio, writes:

"I have better health now than I have had for years, and am fleshier than I have ever been. I am so thankful to you for what you have done for me.

"I cannot praise Peruna enough. I keep it in the house. You have my sincere thanks for your advice.

"My husband is taking Peruna, now. He had such a cough he thought he had consumption, but he is getting better.

"He has taken it only one week and it has done him good."

FAITH THAT CANNOT BE SHAKEN.

Despite everything that sensational magazines may say, the women of the United States continue to have faith in Peruna.

These women know a great deal more about Peruna than the editors who have, for selfish purposes, written against it.

These women have tried Peruna in their families. They have taken it themselves. They know it will help them.

They have suffered from various ailments, and Peruna has come to their relief, even when the doctors failed to cure them.

Such women cannot be convinced by any editorial spasm that their favorite household remedy is a humbug.

Peruna goes right on in its conquest over disease. Its fame is spreading all over the earth.

Especially among American women is Peruna a beloved household remedy.

It is entirely useless for anyone to try to dissuade them from the results of their own experience.

Peruna is a remedy for the mucous membranes. It therefore has a beneficial effect upon the internal organs of the body that are lined by mucous membranes.

For various chronic climatic diseases Peruna is a reliable remedy.

The testimonials concerning Peruna are given in the language of the people. We do not change or add to anything they may say concerning it.

The evidence is overwhelming that Peruna is a safe, reliable, invaluable remedy for the household.

Headache and Backache.

Mrs. Franziska Gaengel, Dominion 1, Old Bridgeport Mines, C. B., Canada, writes:

"I thank you for the benefit which I derived from Peruna. There may be many who are suffering from the same disease that I had, for which they have not yet been able to find the correct remedy.

"For the benefit of such persons I wish to say that I suffered with headache and backache and had a severe cough. I was in bed several weeks and could not do my work. I tried many remedies in vain.

"Then I consulted Dr. Hartman, who advised me to take Peruna and gave me further instructions, which I carefully observed.

"I felt better after taking the first bottle. I have taken several bottles now and am feeling so well that I can do all my work.

"I will never be without Peruna again, and recommend it to all."

Catarrh of the Stomach.

Mrs. Mary Allen, Route 6, Franklin, Tenn., writes:

"I am glad to be able to tell you that I am well of catarrh of the stomach, and am sincerely thankful to you for your advice.

"If it had not been for Peruna I would never have been well. I had three physicians. One of them told my husband that he could not cure me.

"I had been sick about nine months when a friend asked me to try Peruna to gratify her; so I commenced taking it. I can eat and walk and work.

"Everybody says I look as well as I ever did. Oh, you don't know how thankful I do feel to you! I have got several other people to take Peruna. I praise it to everybody."

EARLE C. TUTEN.

The Tramp.

Many people think that the tramp is simply a man out of work, willing to labor if he has a chance, and others again claim that he is more a victim of circumstances than of his own perversity.

Neither of these opinions cover the case. A tramp is a man who prefers vagabondage to any other business and is generally satisfied with the wisdom of choice.

Not one in fifty could not find work or say he never had a fair chance in life. Almost any day, in the summer at least, the tramp can earn his keep if he is not too lazy, and even in winter work could be had if he cared to do it. But he hates work, and in the majority of instances confess that he is a voluntary idler.

Too Many Dogs at Large.

This kind of weather the dogs are as thick as bees. Dog days are coming on and it would be a good idea to see that these beasts are kept tied. Last year there were a number of people in other towns that were bitten by mad dogs and this matter should be looked after before the hot days of summer are upon us. As soon as the sun commences to shine the dogs begin to prowl about the streets. They dig in people's gardens and flower beds, and commit other offences. A dog ordinance of some kind should be adopted and carried out.

He is All Right.

Say, do you know the kind of fellow who's just to the world's mind? The kind the world can't lose? The kind that folks entouse over and take off their hats to? Why its the man who does. He's the fellow! Not the fellow who's grandpa got there; not the fellow who would if he could: not the fellow who is going to some, day but the man who does, now, today no sitting around waiting about him; no expecting something to happen; no looking for something to turn up. No sir! He calls the turns and turns them; he takes off his coat and doesn't care if he starts a little sweat; he doesn't need a big brass buttoned copper to tell him to move on; he keeps the procession bumping to keep up with him, he is a hustle from his feet up and from his head down, he is not only in the push, but he is the push—the whole thing; they say the way he makes business hum is a caution; the way the world takes that fellow up is good to him, makes your heart glad, he is all right, he is; he greases the wheels of progress and keeps the world spining around.

The boys have come Home.

On Saturday the young men from Bellefonte who have been employed in glass factories in towns throughout the state arrived home for several months, as on the 20th of this month all the factories throughout the state closed down for the season. Among the ones reached Bellefonte Saturday were Geo. Rhoads and family, Clay Rider and family, Allen Waite and family, Abner Rider and Charley Gunsalus better known as "whishers" all from Reynoldsville, and William Rider and family from Kane.

John Ellmore will be a Millionaire.

His experiment given at the Bellefonte Electric Light plant proved a success in every particular. His compound has 24 different ingredients in it. Each part has a separate work to perform. In answer to what the North American said about Ellmore in regards to him staying at the Cobbler business, he says he knows his awe, sees his end and fits his last for the ash pile.

Following are the facts concerning test made by John Ellmore at the plant of the Bellefonte Electric Co's. at Bellefonte, Pa., April 19th, 1907.

Fire started 1:30 p. m. Test began 6 p. m. Continued 5 hours. H. P. of boiler 300.

Killo-watt output 247.65. Coal consumed 3100 lbs. Removed 1 wheelbarrow load of clinkers.

Fuel mixture consisted of 3 parts coal, 1 part ashes, this being all the ashes the boiler made during test., to this fuel mixture was added 60 gallons of his compound, coasting 5 cents and was composed of 1 quart of his powder dissolved in 60 gallons of water. During the test all the ashes were consumed, except the one wheelbarrow load mentioned above. During the test the smoke from our stacks was considerably less than at other times.

The following night under the same conditions our output was 270.79 K. W. Coal consumption 3900 lbs. (Used coal only.)

Coal used with Ellmore's mixture per K. W. hr. 12.55 lbs.

Coal used with Ellmore's mixture per K. W. hr. 14.40 lbs.

Results:—Saving of fuel with Ellmore's mixture per K. W. hr. 1.85 lbs. This amounts to a saving of 12.34 per cent.

Zane Bland Gray.

On Friday morning Zane Bland Gray died at his home in Tyrone. He was a native of Centre county having been born at Half Moon Valley. He was 66 years of age. In 1867 he was united in marriage to Miss Rachael Amanda Waddle. He was a life long member of the Methodist Episcopal church, also a member of the Tyrone Lodge No. 494 Free and Accepted Masons and a member of the Williamsport Consistory A. A. S. R. The funeral occured on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment at Tyrone.

Burning Ashes.

Pretty soon somebody will discover a method of converting smoke into raspberry jam.

That formula for the burning of ashes came just after many householders had paid two dollers to have their ashes carted away.

It's a wonder some breakfast food company does not corral snow flakes and put them on the market.

If Ellmore was offered a million dollars for the secret of burning ashes he now probably feels somewhat scorched because he did not accept the money.

The Bellefonte Water company may enter protest against the use of water in the burning of ashes.

Ashes have always been valuable. Out of the ashes of the burned state capitol arose a new building out of which Sanderson and other grafters made millions of dollars.

A Philadelphia scientist says there is nothing in the alleged secret of burning ashes. But there is something in it for the dealer on oxalic acid.

We all know what a hole cigar ashes will burn in the smokers pocketbook.

One on the Editor.

A Kansas editor tried the experiment of telling the unvarnished truth in his journal for one week. He didn't get beyond the first day. This item appeared on Monday: "Married—Miss Sylvia Rhode to James Carnaham, last Sunday evening at the Baptist church. The bride was an ordinary town girl, who doesn't know any more than a rabbit about cooking, and never helped her mother three days in her life. She is not a beauty by any means, and has a gait like a duck. The bride-groom is an up to-date loafer, has been living off the old folks all his life, and don't amount to chucks, nohow. They will have a hard life while they live together. The editor is still in the hospital.

Captain Irwin's Order Concerning Minister's.

Obey them that have the rule over you and submit yourselves. Remember them which have the rule over you who have spoken unto you the word of God. We beseech you Brethren to know them which labor among you and are over you in the Lord and admonish you, and to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake. Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially they who labor in word and doctrine.

The death of Mrs. John Sechler, of No. 20 DuBois street, formerly of Bellefonte has brought to light a case which appears to be deserving of the attention of charitably inclined persons. Mrs. Sechler died on Thursday of last week, leaving to survive her a husband and thirteen children. The youngest child, five months of age, is now at the hospital.

Mr. Sechler has been employed as night watchman at the Breon mill until about five weeks ago when his wife was taken sick and had to be removed to the hospital. This necessitated him being home at night to look after the children and he secured employmens at the Keeler boiler works. With his large family and much sickness, followed by the death of the wife and mother, Mr. Sechler is in need of assistance for his kids and children.

One of the children was taken to Stubury last evening by a friend of the family and will be cared for there. The others, with the exception of the babe at the hospital, are at home. Among the children are twins, a boy and a girl, about three and a half years old.

Mrs. Sechler had been at the hospital four week prior to her death.

The mother who would be horrified at the thought of letting her daughter wander away to a strange country without guide or counsel, yet permits her to enter that unknown land of womanhood without counsel or caution. Then, in utter ignorance, the maiden must meet physical problems whose solution will effect her whole future life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been well named a "God send to women." It corrects irregularities and imparts such vigorous vitality to the delicate womanly organs, as fits them for their important functions. Many a nervous, hysterical, peevish girl has been changed to a happy young woman after the use of "Favorite Prescription" has established the sound health of the organs peculiarly feminine.

Not a patent medicine but the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce's Specialist in the diseases of women. Of known composition, without alcohol or other dangerous stimulants, the active medicinal principles of Golden Seal and Lady's Slipper root, of Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root and Blue Cohosh root are extracted from each by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine.

GAVE A MILLION.

To Educate and Help the Negroes of the South

Philadelphia, April 23rd.—A gift of one million dollars for the establishment of a fund for rudimentary schools or Southern negroes was announced here tonight. The doner is Miss Anna T. Jeanes, a Quakeress of this city. Booker T. Washington, head of Tustogee Institute and Hollis Burk Frissell, president of the Hampton Normal and Industrial Institute, are named as trustees of the fond but neither of the institutions they represent will share in the gift. The income of the million dollars is to be used for the sole purpose of assisting in the "Southern United States community, country and rural schools for the great class of negroes to whom the small rural and community schools are alone available." The deed of gift was executed yesterday and in it Mr. Washington and Mr. Frissell are empowered to appoint a board of trustees in connection with the fund. The Pennsylvania company for Insurances on lives and granting annuities, of this city, will act as fiscal agent for the trustees

Miss Jeanes, the donor, is about eighty years of age and comes from an old wealthy family that has been prominent for more than a century in the Society of Friends. She has long been interested in the welfare of the negro and has been a contributor to institutions for their education. She has known Mr. Washington for a decade.

Ellmore Was Here.

Friday morning Ellmore the renowned cobbler from Altoona with Dr. H. K. Hoy arrived in Bellefonte and after a long parley with some of our citizens as to who would stand the expense of the experiment, his ash burning compound was put to work. From the appearance and smell of the stuff it is not the same formula as the North American gave out on Thursday. Nor does it burn the ashes as does the North American formula.

Ellmore uses three fourth coal and one fourth coal ashes.

Friday morning he took three scoop shovels of coal to a shovel of ashes and about a quart of the liquid mix up thoroughly. It made a hot fire and did away with a good bit of the smoke. He claims by using this compound that out of a ton of coal you would only have a wheel barrow full of ashes.

The compound that Dr. Krumrine used Thursday night in his furnace gave the same results and you could hardly notice any coal among the ashes.

Matt and Ellie Married.

Tuesday morning at eight o'clock Miss Ellie Smuvikieis was united in marriage to Mr. Matt Perchak at the St. John'sCatholic church. After the ceremony they returned to their quarters out along Collins Row where all day long they have been singing, dancing and drinking beer. This is the custom of this nationality, and we are happy that this form of a reception is not carried out by the more civilized people. The bride is supposed to dance with every male guest present, after which he gives her a dollar a wedding present

Paying the Price.

By Louise J. Strong.

Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

As Ordway dodged through the stream of traffic at the crossing merry greetings saluted him from a crowded auto car that just missed him as it chugged by. He bowed gravely to the smiling occupants, observing that She was of the number, and then he passed on to the business appointment that had prevented his being in the party. It was an appointment that he might have easily evaded, but he felt the need of time to consider an astonishing revelation which had been made to him that morning.

"Because I think it has gone far enough, or too far for that matter, and to save you the pain of a refusal I tell you this open secret," the informer had declared magnanimously, "for it is an open secret in our crowd, where all have conspired to keep it from you, that Miss Annabelle Mills before she met you wagered a box of gloves with the girls that she would bring you to the point of proposal—you, the hitherto invulnerable—in three months."

Ordway had taken the blow without flinching. He had thanked the considerate revealer of secrets without comment, to the mystification of that individual, who felt cheated of his anticipated sensation. It was instinctive self defense in Ordway, who knew Cathcart's interest in one of the fair wagerers and suspected the magnanimity was but an effort to help her to win. But he could not doubt the truth of the communication in the face of the evidence given.

His reflections were exceedingly bitter as he plunged along in an absorption that drove all thoughts of business from his mind. He had been an easy victim; he had not resisted, but had succumbed almost at once to the wiles of the beauty. From the moment of meeting she had stood to him for all that is lovely, charming and true in woman, and he had early acknowledged to himself the desire to win her if possible and the determination to endeavor to do so. And he had soon become aware of the fact, incredible as it had seemed to him, that she was not wholly averse to the winning. He had at last felt sure of that beyond peradventure, and his heart had thrilled with the inspiring certainty of success, a success that he regarded with reverent gratitude and vows of greater worthiness. The sly raillery from their common associates upon his evident and entire subjugation he had taken as a matter of course, to be borne with the equanimity of the victor, never dreaming they were scouting him as an easy, an amusing victim nor suspecting that her adorable yielding was insincere.

He had come to love her with all his power to love woman. Losing her, he would go through life alone, and the wound of her falsity would never heal. He had given his all for the furtherance of a vulgar wager, had yielded the soul of his manhood a puppet in a game. In the just anger that presently surged over him, for the moment searing his pain, he felt that she was little better than a murderess. She had known from the first. He had not tried to conceal his love. She had deliberately lured him on to the wrecking of all that was best in him. She was unworthy of the slightest respect. He wondered that he could have so loved one so utterly false. But some inner consciousness cried out at this harsh judgment of her. As he thought over all that their intimate association had shown him of her character it seemed impossible that she could be the frivolous, cold hearted coquette which the situation declared her to be, and yet—and yet— With a weary sigh, he abandoned the effort to understand.

But the hurt remained and deepened as he recalled his appointment with her for that evening, an appointment which meant that the hour had come for the asking and answering of the question more important to him than life itself. And by the look in her sweet eyes, when she granted him permission to come, he had left assured that she understood and did not repel him.

Did it mean to her but the crowning of her mean victory? Well, she should have the poor gratification of winning the senseless wager! It mattered little to him—nothing mattered to him now. He tried numbly to outline a future that would take him to distant lands and new associations, where he would strive to forget and also strive to regain his faith in humanity. Some time he might perhaps feel scorn of himself that he could not scorn her openly and fling her puerile duplicity in her face.

As he neared her house he saw with surprise that it was lighted up, and as he entered the hall he heard familiar voices and laughter. She was in haste then to flaunt her victory and had assembled her confederates in readiness. He set his teeth and resisted the impulse to retreat, to leave her vainly waiting, the butt of her triumphant allies. The humiliation through which it seemed she designed to drag him ought surely to be the deathblow to his love. For that, if for no other reason, he would endure it.

He waited for her in the library, formulating his speech in the fewest words possible and the least expression of sentiment that would give her the victory for which she had demeaned herself.

"I am taking you from your friends," he began as she entered. "I will keep you but a moment. I wish to ask you"—

She came to him swiftly with raised hand.

"Hush!" she entreated. "Say nothing. I have a confession to make, and then I want you to go away quietly and leave town tonight, that none of them may know that you have been here. It is the last—but I have not—you cannot understand until I have"—she faltered, her shame dyed face drooping. "Before I met you I—the girl—I—I can scarcely voice the shameless—you had been represented as one singularly indifferent to—to—one who had never been interested enough in any woman to sue for her favor—it was predicted that you never could be brought to the point of offering yourself—to"—she stammered pitifully and caught her breath—"I was challenged to try my power, with exultant prophecy of failure, and it led—to—to a silly wager. I accepted the dare—all this before I had seen you—when I met you"—again she faltered—"I tried to withdraw—I was derided and goaded constantly with—no, I have no excuse to offer—I am utterly ashamed of myself and despise myself as heartily as you must now you know—and I have failed. They came unexpectedly tonight, the last night of the wager, to gloat over my failure. Go now and try to have some pity for a silly girl who did not realize what she was"—

He caught her hands, interrupting eagerly. "You have not failed, for I now make you an offer of my hand. I ask you to marry me."

She twisted her imprisoned hands and cried brokenly:

"I thank you for your generosity—but you cannot mean it—you cannot have even respect for one"—

"I mean it from my heart," he broke in, something in her manner, her humble face and trembling tones sweeping away everything but his love for her and restoring his faith and trust in her. "From the moment I met you I have had no thought but to win you to"—

"Think of what I am guilty," she whispered tearfully, with a shy glance that made his heart leap.

"I can think of nothing but that you are—you have been sincere, that you love"—

There was a rush and commotion in the hall, with calls for her and an impatient rap upon the door; then it burst open, disclosing the crowd, and a girl cried, "How unfair of you, Annabelle, to summon him here at the last moment to wring a"—

"Come in, all of you," Annabelle interrupted gayly, slipping her hand in Ordway's, her radiant eyes seeking his, "come in and congratulate me. Mr. Ordway is going to buy my gloves in the future."

Exit George.

The time was approaching midnight. The old gentleman was listening from a coign of vantage at the head of the stairs. He had been there in his stocking feet for as long as thirty-two minutes. The young man was lingering at the front door with the old gent's daughter. As a lingerer he was a success, and he was aided and abetted by the girl. This also the old gent knew as well as several other interesting things. That's why he became tired of listening at the head of the stairs. At last he heard a shuffling of feet.

"It's so hard to say good night, darling," the young man said to the girl, who believed every word he uttered, as they always do before matrimony gets in its baleful work.

"Don't say it, George!" sang out the old man. "Wait about five minutes and say good morning!"

It was then the impediment in George's speech was removed, and, with at least four and a half minutes to spare, the girl closed the front door, and George trotted along home.—Strand Magazine.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla. The liver will quickly respond, and so will the bowels.

A GASOLINE ENGINE

The Greatest Convenience—A Womans Point of View.

On the farm where milch cows are kept, I find that the gasoline engine takes the place of a hired man. Our gasoline engine runs a churn, in which we can work 150 pounds of butter; runs the cream separator, turns the washing machine and is attached to our bone cutter, that grinds up waste scraps of meat and bone, which are fed to biddy to help produce the winter eggs. This little engine also shells and grinds corn with the aid of a sheller and feed grinder. Last but not least, it saws the wood for the family use.

A gasoline engine is one of the necessities of a farm, and from my own experience, I would rather have it than any hired help. Any woman can learn to operate one. My sister and I have started the engine, separated the milk, churned, washed, ground bone, sheller corn, ground feed, also sawed wood. I think an engine is just as necessary on a farm as a horse.

A great many people believe that it is throwing money away to have such appliances to work with. You will change your mind after you have had experence with unreliable hired help. "Well" some say", we can't afford such machinery, it costs money." That is true, but just estimate the little leaks, and the time lost in not having an engine and suitable machine to which it can be attached.

Resolution of Respect.

Inasmuch as it has pleased Almighty God in His all wise providence, to take from our midst our brother and fellow co-laborer, Michael Corman, and where as he was for so many years a faithful and helpful member of the Reformed Church at Zion. An Elder in the same congregation and a member of our joint consistory.

We, the joint consistory of the Bellefonte charge in annual session, nineteenth day of April 1907 desiring to make a suitable record of our mutual loss; do hereby adopt the following resolutions.

Resolved—That in the death of our brother, Elder Michael Corman, the Reformed Church has lost one of its faithful members and the official board of the church, one of its most active and aggressive counsellors.

Resolved—That we most tenderly extend our sympathy to the members of the bereaved household and commend them to the love and care of our Heavenly Father.

Resolved—That this action be spread upon the minutes of the joint consistory; be published in the Bellefonte papers; and a copy of these resolutions be presented to the widow of our deceased brother.

The man for the Occasion.

Talking about versatility of talent, we do not know of one who is more equal to any occasion or emergency than is O. C. Campbell, of Barnesboro, manager of Cambria County Telephone Company. If any trouble occurs, he is the man to locate the cause, and in every day life displays a resourcefulness possessed by few. On Wednesday evening at the minstrel show at Patton just as the curtain was about to rise it was discovered that Arty Shannon, the soloist, was missing. Someone had to take his place or the show could not proceed. At this moment Mr. Campbell appeared, although never having been behind the foolights; hastily blacking his face filled the gap. His singing brought down the house, especially when his voice reached as high as 18 ampers or decended to 1 ohm; he also displayed so much energy that his dynamo caused a short circuit and burned out his lightning arrester.—Barnesboro Star.

EVERYBODY IS BURNING COAL ASHES.

Oxalic Acid has Been Bought Until Drug Stores Have no More.

One of the principal topics of conversation last night was the John Ellmore formula for causing coal ashes to burn, which was made public Friday. In a number of homes and factories in this city the scheme was tried with remarkable results, and today the drug stores will have many calls for oxalic acid and the grocery stores for salt, for almost everybody intends testing the compound at once.

John Ellmore claims he does not use oxalic acid and salt, and we don't believe he does. The test he gave at the water works on Friday morning was not satisfactory to Mr. Ellmore or the citizens who had gathered to witness the exhibition, and to he was given the use of the coal and ashes and boilers at the Electric Light works to try his compound on.

They began firing up the boilers at 6 o'clock last evening and up until 11 o'clock (5 hours) he had burned 3000 lbs of coal. Barney McGovern the fireman says that he wheeled out 1½ wheel borrow full of clinkers. Now tonight the plain coal will be used during the same number of hours. Tonights experiment will tell whether John Elmores compound will be a saving to the consumers of coal.

AN ORDINANCE.

To regulate and prohibit children under sixteen years of age from being on the streets and alleys, or other public places, of the Borough of Bellefonte after certain hours.

Be it ordained and enacted by the Town Council of the Borough of Bellefonte, and it is hereby ordained and enacted into an ordinance by the authority of the same.

Section 1. That all children under sixteen years of age shall hereafter be prohibited from idling, loafing or being on any of the streets and alleys of the said Borough, except in company of a parent or adult guardian, or bearing a written statement, dated that day and signed by a parent or guardian, stating that said child is on an emergency errand, after the hour of eight o'clock P. M. from the 1st day of October to the 1st day of April inclusive, and after the hour of nine P. M. from the 1st day of April to the 1st day of October inclusive; and that all children under sixteen years of age shall hereafter be prohibited from idling, loafing or being at or about any railroad station within said Borough after the hour of eight o'clock P. M. on any day of the year, except in company of a parent or adult guardian.

Section 2. That any child so found after the time appointed shall be liable to be warned by any constable or peace officer to go home, and if, after such warning, the child shall be found loitering on the streets, such child may be taken to its home by such officer; that any parent or guardian may be summoned for permitting his child to habitually break the ordinance, after having been warned by any constable or peace officer, and may be fined for the first offense one dollar, without costs, for the second offense two dollars, and for the third or any subsequent offense five dollars.

Section 3. That the whistle at the plant of the Bellefonte Electric Company shall be sounded fifteen minutes before the time above specified as a warning to such children and their parents or guardians and at the times above specified, but the failure to hear such whistle, or the failure of such whistle to be sounded, shall not be deemed an excuse for the idling, loafing or being on the streets of any children as aforesaid:

Section 4. That all ordinances, or portion thereof, inconsistant herewith, and particularly the Second Section of an ordinance of the 20th of August 1877, are hereby repealed. Ordained and enacted into an ordinance this 15th day of April, A. D, 1907.

State Eleven too Good.

The following is one of the editorial comments found on the sporting page of the Philadelphia North American.

"That it is dangerous for a footbal eleven to get to be too good is proved in the case of State College.

"Every year this plucky up-State Pennsylvania eleven managed to get out of its comparatively small student body a strong football eleven. The best games on the schedule were those with Pennsylvania and Yale. One fall day Pennsylvania decided that State was too tough for an opponent for the early season, and struck the Bellefonte boys from the schedule.

"Now Yale has followed suit. Last season State gave the Elis the toughest kind of a battle and only lost by a score of 10-0. Rather than risk the condition of the eleven by taking on such a redoubtable opponent close to the Princeton contest, Yale dropped State, after frankly naming the reason."

THERE are more than two thousand National Cigar Stands to-day; each an established local enterprise owned and conducted by a local resident, but with all their buying power concentrated into one tremendous co-operative whole,—two thousand stores that buy as one, yet sell individually and independently.

This is the greatest retail cigar outlet on earth, and consequently the greatest purchasing power ever known in the history of the tobacco business.

This cigar is of a quality that has never before been bought by the smoker for less than 3 for 25c. This saving is shown with equal effect in all the cigars sold by National Stands. Among them are:

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

TAILORS IN A RIOT.

Refused to Permit a Performance That Satirized Their Craft.

In 1769 Foote had produced a burlesque, the author of which has never been discovered, entitled "The Tailors; a Tragedy For Warm Weather." Dowton announced the revival of this piece for his benefit. As the title implies, it was a satire upon the sartorial craft, and upon the bills being issued an indignation meeting was convened by the knights of the needle, who vowed to oppose the performance by might and main.

Menacing letters were sent to Dowton telling him that 17,000 tailors would attend to his piece, and one, who signed himself "Death," added that 10,000 men could be found if necessary. These threats were laughed at by the actors, but when night came it was discovered that the craft were in earnest and that with few exceptions they had contrived to secure every seat in the house, while a mob without still squeezed for admission. The moment Dowton appeared upon the stage there was a hideous uproar and some one threw a pair of shears at him.

Not a word would the rioters listen to, nor would they accept any compromise in the way of changing the piece. Within howled and hissed without intermission hundreds of exasperated tailors; outside howled and bellowed thousands of raging tailors, who attempted to storm the house. So formidable did the riot wax that a magistrate had to be sent for and special constables called out, but these were helpless against overwhelming odds, so a troop of life guards was ultimately summoned, who, after making sixteen prisoners, put the rest to flight.—American Tailor and Cutter.

His Sense of Touch.

"A country grocer," said a lecturer, "was talking to a throng of customers about the wonderful sense of touch that the blind have. 'Here comes old blind Henry Perkins now,' said the grocer. 'We'll test him.' And he took a scoopful of sugar and extended it to the old man. 'Feel this, Henry,' he said, 'and tell us what it is.'

"The blind man put his hand in the scoop, passed its contents through his fingers and said in a firm, confident tone, 'Sand.'"

Dainty Deer.

How sensitive deer are in the matter of food was proved once again during the hearing of a case at Feltham, England, where three men were charged with sleeping in a deer pen in Bushey park. A keeper said they had pulled down from the racks about ten shillings' worth of hay, which the deer would not afterward touch because it had been lain upon. In fact, the deer would not go near the pens, as the men had slept there.

When cooking rabbit always remove the kidney fat and the flavor of the meat will be greatly improved.

For a green omelet mix minced parsley with the beaten egg before turning it into the pan, and then cook without browning.

Instead of stuffing dates with nuts try filling them with cream cheese for an afternoon tea relish. Finely chopped nuts mixed with the cheese is an addition.

When frying croquettes or doughnuts in fat it is well to drop in a small bit of bread when smoke begins to rise. If in about five minutes the bread begins to brown, the fat is ready for use.

Into the pot of boiling mutton drop an onion into which a clove has been stuck, a small carrot and a small bit of bay leaf. If the liquor is to be used for a soup, add a couple of tablespoonfuls of barley.

Things Not to Do at Table.

Erasmus, the old Dutch philosopher and theologian, in his curious essay "On Behavior at Meals," remarks that it is "very rude to blow one's nose on the tablecloth" or to "wipe one's fingers on one's neighbor's coat." He also advises the guest "not to give dogs your bones to crack under the table or feed the cat or encourage animals to jump on the table. This may offend your host or lead to the soiling of his carpet." An admonition that might well be observed in the present day. "Above all," he says, "do not lick your plate. It is an act that ill becomes a cat, let alone a gentleman."

Dogs and Drinking Water.

Who has not at some time or other envied the impunity with which a dog drinks brackish water that no human being dare touch? Civilized communities have solved the problem of a pure water supply so completely that they cannot get on without pure water. Dogs by elimination of those most readily poisoned by bad water have become as a race immune to bad water. In this case the checking of natural selection does not matter, because the supply of good water can probably always be secured.—London Post.

THE COLD BATH.

Many Men Say They Like It, but They Don't Like It.

In a paper read at a meeting of an association for the study of tuberculosis an eminent doctor said that one of the curious facts connected with the practice of the cold bath in the morning is that so many of its votaries positively declare that they enjoy it. He contends that they do not and cannot enjoy it. The doctor is doubtless right as far as he goes, but he does not go far enough. He misses the main point, perhaps the only point worth emphasizing.

There is abundant reason to believe that the most curious fact connected with the cold bath in the morning is that so many people who insist that they enjoy it do not take it. There is vicarious atonement, and there is also vicarious bathing, and it is a very easy matter to enjoy a bath that is not taken, the bath of somebody else. Almost anybody gifted with a little imagination can sing the praises of a cold bath in the morning. There are the pleasurable, even delightful, shudders of the first dip and splash; the brisk rub with a coarse crash towel; the warm, health giving glow; the new man feeling, exhilarating, uplifting, as one gets into his attire for the day's work, and, above all, the sense of cleanliness imparted by the cold bath every morning.

And it is equally easy to take a cold bath every morning. It only remains to turn on the hot water faucet and enter the tub. Or both faucets may be turned on and, without entering the tub, one may stir the water violently with his hands, draw long breaths and shiver, not perceptibly, but audibly. It will all sound remarkably lifelike, this performance, wonderfully like taking a cold bath. Even an alert and suspicious sentinel, stationed at the door, his ear delicately attuned to what is going on within, may be readily deceived by the cold bath in the morning.

Contemplate, some broiling August forenoon, the man who tells you that he fairly revels in the cold bath on winter mornings as he gingerly steers his bare feet through the ripples that are lazily lapping the beach at a shore resort, and believe in him and trust him if you can. Watch him advance as if he were going to meet his doom, hesitate, glance shoreward longingly, retreat, immersing himself slowly, reluctantly, inch by inch. Suddenly he remembers that he must wet his head if he would avoid a chill, and he pauses to shampoo his hair in the sad sea waves—this hero of a thousand frigid baths on a thousand frozen mornings!

As a matter of fact, what a man may do alone with his sponge in his bathroom no other man may know, and what he pretends he does may be as "false as dicers' oaths."—Providence Tribune.

Women as Walkers.

Even the athletic girls and women of today can hardly make any advance upon the record of Mary Lamb, who wrote to Miss Wordsworth (both women being between fifty and sixty years old): "You say you can walk fifteen miles with ease. That is exactly my stint." She then speaks pityingly of a delicate woman who could accomplish "only four or five miles every third or fourth day, keeping very quiet between."

Manhattan Island.

Indians who accepted $24 from Governor Peter Minuit for Manhattan Island in 1626 did not make such a bad bargain, for if they had invested that sum of money at compound interest at the prevailing rates since then their heirs would now have $12,000,000,000.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

INHUMAN TORTURES.

The Old English Custom of Burning Women Alive.

The horrible punishment of burning women alive seems to have existed in Saxon England, but perhaps only in the case of slaves. Under the Norman rulers any woman, bond or free, who killed her husband was burned alive, and the same punishment for this crime and also for high treason and even for coining and other minor offenses continued or arose from time to time through the second and third periods until it was abolished by act of parliament in 1790, the last actual execution of this kind having, however, taken place six years earlier. The whipping of women for various offenses continued even later. Public whipping was not abandoned until 1817, and cases of private whipping occurred as late as 1820.

There can be no doubt, we think, that the savage human instinct of cruelty had something to do with the barbarous punishments above mentioned. As the old Roman public longed for the carnage of the circus, as the Spanish populace crowded to the auto-da-fe in the flourishing days of the inquisition, so the lower (perhaps not only the lower) strata of English nationality took delight in witnessing tortures which in all probability were devised and kept up partly for their entertainment. Judge Jeffreys in sentencing a woman to be whipped is reported to have said:

"Hangman, I charge you to pay particular attention to this lady. Scourge her till her blood runs down. It is Christmas time, a cold time for madam to strip. See that you burn her shoulders thoroughly."—Cornhill Magazine.

SAVING MONEY.

Getting the First Thousand Dollars and What It Teaches.

"Get the first $1,000. After that money making is easy." This is the old time sage advice of the hard headed, self made man. That axiom has set many men to saving. They fix upon that sum as the glittering, faroff Eldorado of a fortune some time to be made. To a man on a small salary—a salary, say, out of which something can be saved weekly without too much deprivation—the advice is good. There is something in it that acts as a stimulus to economy. And who will deny that economy is a good thing or that any truth that lights the way to it should not be known?

Many men, therefore, have been buoyed up in their economies by the belief that the first $1,000 is the hardest to get and that afterward all the rest would be easy and the good things of the world that follow a bounteous supply of money would be within easy reach. It is a pity that the man who invented that saying could not also have told us with equal advantage how to turn the $1,000 over and make two of it. It takes a long time to make a wage earner see that "money works." His idea of making money is to work for it himself. It never occurs to him that money works much easier than he can and without any of the hardships he himself experiences—that is to say, until he has got the first $1,000. That usually makes a young man feel like a financier, and he talks wisely of investments.—Denver Republican.

Just Keep On.

When today's difficulties overshadow yesterday's triumphs and obscure the bright visions of tomorrow, when plans upset and whole years of effort seem to crystallize into a single hour of concentrated bitterness, when little annoyances eat into the mind very quickly and corrode the power to view things calmly, when the jolts of misfortune threaten to jar loose the judgment from its moorings, remember that in every business, in every career, there are valleys to cross, as well as hills to scale; that every mountain range of hope is broken by chasms of discouragement through which run torrent streams of despair! To quit in the chasm is to fail. See always in your mind's eye those sunny summits of success! Don't quit in the chasm! Keep on!—System.

Absentminded.

"Your wife has fallen downstairs and is seriously hurt!" screamed an excited neighbor over the telephone.

"What's her address?" asked the absentminded editor. "I'll send a reporter up to see if he can get her picture."—Detroit Free Press.

Still In Danger.

Wiggles—I hear Bjenks has been very ill. Is he out of danger yet? Waggles—Well, he's convalescent, but he won't be out of danger until that pretty nurse who has been taking care of him has gone away.

Her Idea of It.

"Is this the Stock Exchange?" inquired the sweet young matron.

"Yes, madam."

"Then I wish to exchange these securities for some that will pay dividends. These never have."—Exchange.

His Distinction.

A doctor forbidding a patient to drink alcoholic beverages, the patient replied, "But, doctor, you yourself drink alcohol." "Yes, my friend, but not as a doctor. When I do drink I do so only as an ordinary man."

The Poets.

"Poets usually have sad lives," said the sentimentalist.

"Well," answered Mr. Cumrox, "writing the kind of things they do, I don't see how they could expect to be very cheerful."—Washington Star.

A BOLD STEP.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has absolutely and completely removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

They are now in a class all by themselves--being absolutely and in every sense Non-secret.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

So many false formulas and malicious statements concerning his medicines had been published through the connivance of jealous competitors and disgruntled doctors, that Dr. Pierce determined to completely disarm his assailants by a full and frank statement of their exact composition, verifying the same under oath as complete and correct. This he has done and to the complete discomfiture of those who had assailed his good name as well as the well-earned reputation of his world-famed medicines.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this booklet it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, and with the use of specially designed chemical apparatus, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health.

The exact proportion of the several ingredients used in these medicines, as well as the working formula and peculiar processes, apparatus and appliances employed in their manufacture, are withheld from publicity that Dr. Pierce's proprietary rights may not be infringed and trespassed upon by unprincipled imitators and those who may be piratically inclined.

Dr. John Fyfe, of Saugatuck, Conn., Editor of the Department of Therapeutics in THE ELECTRIC REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) one of the chief ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription: "A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator and always favors a condition which makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system, cannot fail to be of great usefulness and of the utmost importance to the general practitioner of medicine."

"Helonias more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent."

"The following are among the leading indications for Helonias: Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhea; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women, constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys: menorrhagia, ("flooding") due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhea, arrising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and an anemic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid women can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is rich in all the medicinal properties of Unicorn root or Helonias.

Washington Monument's Cap.

The first practical use ever made of aluminium was in fitting a cap on the peak of the Washington monument in 1884. Although aluminium was discovered in 1827 by Professor Wohler of Gottingen university, Germany, at that time it was practically an unknown metal, the cost and difficulty of its production having prevented its development until the general use of electricity made it easy and economical. The cap on the top of the monument is a square pyramid in shape, weighing 100 ounces, and is 8.9 inches in height and 5.6 inches in width at the base. General George W. Davis was in immediate charge of the completion of the monument under General Casey and has the distinction of being the first man to handle aluminium in a practical way. Until that time it had been used only for toys, for "freak" purposes, and small samples had been utilized in making models for the patent office.—Boston Globe.

Gold the First Metal Used.

Gold was probably the first metal known to man because it is generally found native. The oldest metallic objects to which we can assign a probable date were found in a royal tomb at Nagada, in Egypt, supposed to have been that of King Menes. In one of the chambers were some bits of gold and a bead, a button and a fine wire of nearly pure copper. If the tomb was properly identified, these objects were at least 6,300 years old at the time of their discovery. Nearly all of the ancient gold that has been examined contains enough silver to give it a light color. It was gathered by the ancients in the bed of the Pactolus and other streams of Asia Minor.

A Quaint Scotch Wedding Custom.

A quaint wedding custom still prevails in many of the little country towns and mining villages in Scotland. When a wedding is held the contracting parties make their guests pay in full for the eating, drinking and dancing facilities which are usually provided on such occasions. The practice still seems to survive even in Glasgow. A correspondent observed a notice posted up in the Cowcaddens, a low class Glasgow thoroughfare, informing the public that a soldier would shortly enter into the bonds of wedlock and that twopence would be charged for admission to the ceremony and an additional sixpence imposed for attendance at the wedding feast. The practice seems to be peculiarly Scotch, but sixpence certainly seems moderate enough for a marriage supper.—Westminster Gazette.

The Reader Who Skips.

A good work of fiction, whether in prose or in verse—we are here speaking only of good works—is a work of art and can be rightly enjoyed only by entering into sympathy with the artist's mind and accepting his work according to his intention. In a perfect poem the place of every word, in a perfect novel the place, if not of every word, of every episode and of every paragraph, is important, and the reader who skips throws away the pleasure he has meant to derive from the harmony of composition, in which very possibly the beauty of the whole may chiefly consist, and despises the best part of the artist's labor. He might as well go to see a good play and then willfully miss every alternate scene.—Exchange.

Atmospheric Temperature.

The temperature of the atmosphere cools on an average about 1 degree for every 300 feet that we ascend or warms at the same rate as we descend. The mean temperature at the north pole is 0 and at the equator between 80 and 90 degrees. We can, therefore, get into a temperature 1 degree colder for every seventy or eighty miles that we travel north and in a temperature 1 degree warmer for every seventy or eighty miles that we travel south.

"Had dyspepsia or indigestion for years. No appetite, and what I did eat distressed me terribly, Burdock Blood Bitters cured me."—J. H. Walker, Sunbury, Ohio.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers and others, should insist on having D. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simple refuse to accept any other. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

The guests consumed 100 loaves of bread, 50 kegs of beer and 250 pounds of meat besides the other delicacies of the season, and Ellie she danced and danced, don't think she will want to attend another dance again for ten years. Between the beer, meat and dancing she must have had a pretty full day of it. Of course none of them have big heads today.

TWICE AS MANY DELEGATES.

Going to Lock Haven than was Expected.

Lock Haven seems to be the centre of attraction just at this time. The Odd Fellows and their friends all over Centre county are making arrangements to meet one another in our sister city on Friday April 26th, 1907. Every one is planning to have a good time, even the scribe is going to take a off and go down and see the pretty decorations and the large crowd of people. We have been to Lock Haven often and know just exactly what a royal time you can have, and no doubt the good people of this pretty little city will do all in their power to show every one that they are welcome. We hear that large delegations from down through Penns Valley are making arrangements to attend. You had better take a day off and go down and see what they are going to do any way.

The committee cannot state definitely the number of Odd Fellows and bands to be there, but judging from the preparations being made every where and the notifications received from many points, many thousands of visitors will be in the town that day.

A great many of the public buildings and pretty homes have alread been decorated, but today the decorators will begin work in earnest, as the wheather has been unfavorable the past few days. Over the P. R. R. the excursion rate will be 2 cents a mile. Over the Central R R Pa. the rate from Bellefonte to Mill Hall and return will be 96 cents. You had better join the crowd and go down. Take a day off and see how the Lock Haven people live and look. It would be a change to see new faces and get new ideas.

THE AUSTRIAN FOUND

Steve Cinco Who Was Killed Last December has Been Located.

Steve Cinco the Austrian who was killed last December by a fall of earth at the American Lime and Stone Company's quarries has been found. A half dozen men digging in the hole Tuesday discovered his feet protruding from under a large rock. The stone is so large that it will have to be blasted before it can be taken off his body.

Steve has a wife and three or four children. It will certainly be a comfort to them to know that the husband and father has been found and will receive a christian burial.

When the wife heard that her husbands body was located she ran from her home to the quarries and crawled in the hole to where he lay It is said the scene was very sad and affecting.

Polk, cousins of the bride attended her. Mr. Garber is a young broker of Bellefonte in which city the couple will reside. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Callaway, of Atlantic City; Mrs. A. B. Alexander, of Atlantic City; Mrs. Margaret Polk and Mr and Mrs. W. Powel Oakford of Arlington.—Baltimore Sun.

A Frightful Runaway.

On Saturday evening Joe Harvey from State College was coming to Bellefonte and on the pike coming in William Hoy caught up to him, and the little horse Harvey was driving had to much nerve to let the other beast pass him, and away he went. Harvey pulled the lines and tried hard to get him quieted and when he almost succeeded the line broke, and that sorel horse made a bee line for Bellefonte. After the line broke Harvey thought the best thing for him to do was to get out and in doing so he tore his clothing and bruised himself considerably. The horse ran along Water street until he arrived at Beezers livery stable and then stopped. The buggy and harness was all right but the horse's feet were badly cut where he kicked the wheels.
